

Why is it important to use the B11 series of standards?

Simply put, B11 standards work because they are developed by experienced and knowledgeable industry experts who pool that knowledge and experience in a pre-competitive environment to provide current industry practices and state-of-the-art technology. The B11 standards help employers/machine users to keep their employees safe and are what OSHA uses to hold employers accountable to maintain a safe and healthful workplace for their employees. The B11 standards also help machinery manufacturers reduce their product liability exposure.